Life Trajectory Worksheet: Individual

Everyone wants a good life. The bubbles on the right will help you think about what a good life means for you or your family member, and identifying what you know you don't want. You can use the space around the arrows to think about current or needed life experiences that help point you in the direction of your good life.

Individual Meetings

• In Quarter 3, Meaghan Bodemer, educational coordinator, has had 110 student advisement meetings to date.
  • Quarter 3 is the first time this information has been tracked.
  • Meetings range from 30 minutes to beyond an hour, dependent on the severity of the student issue. Most often there is discussion of available resources, an outline of how to handle any challenges that have arisen and planning a follow up meeting and next steps.
  • Many students often have an intersection of issues, including disability plus others such as poverty, being a member of a minority group, hunger, etc.

OPC is funded by the Office of Disability Employment Policy, U.S. Department of Labor Award No. OD-26453-14-75-4-36.
Intersectionality and Disability

• Our students with disabilities often have a combination of disability and other challenges that can include:
  • Poverty
  • Homelessness
  • Hunger

• Further, this is often combined with other inequalities based on identity including:
  • Gender
  • Race
  • Ethnicity
Challenges

• While community college enrollment of students with disabilities has increased significantly over the last two decades, their completion of degree rates remains low. According to the National Center for Education Statistics in 2007, the completion rate among persons with disabilities enrolled at community college was 16%.

• The National Center for Education Statistics completed a survey in 2002 with a cohort of 15,000 high school sophomores called the Education Longitude Study. 13 years later, following up with the students in the lowest quartile (parents had lowest income, education and worked unskilled jobs) showed that of the 58% that wanted to get a Bachelor’s degree, only 14% did so.
Questions

• With many of our students having a disability plus other challenges, how can we remove barriers and best help prepare them for life after college?

• Our students often face significant hardships while at OCC. If they are unable to rectify and move past these barriers, how can we prepare them for careers?
Questions cont.

• Our students face very serious challenges, in college and beyond. These can include entering the career field of their choice, but often are more basic: financial trouble, lack of mental health services, transportation issues. We are here to act as a resource for our students, but what can we do to prepare them for life after OCC? What happens when referrals are not enough?

• If we help a student remove barriers, but they are not entirely prepared for a career when they leave OCC, can we still consider our program successful?
Student Challenges - John

• Student 1 (John) is a new EMC student who completed classes through Syracuse EOC. He uses public transportation and is a first generation college student.

• John comes to see M. Bodemer 3-4 times per week. It is sometimes to say hello, and other times it is to have discussions and ask questions about classes, tutoring and jobs.

• John shared that he is constantly looking for jobs. He lives at home with his parents. His father is not working and his mother is working a part time job. He struggles in school due to the fact that he is afraid “his lights will get turned off” and spends any free time he has looking for jobs to help pay for basic needs (food, shelter, heat, electricity) for himself and his family.
Student Challenges - Steve

- Student 2 (Steve) has regular meetings set up with M. Bodemer, but has missed many due to transportation issues, court dates, and other problems.
- Steve has a criminal record and is concerned that he will not be able to find a job after completing his college degree, and constantly has feelings that he would like to drop out.
- Steve began the semester with no transportation and was living in a shelter. Steve recently got a small one bedroom apartment and help with a car, but he has taken out loans to secure these and is concerned he will not be able to pay them back.
- Steve often misses classes due to work, mental health issues, transportation problems, etc.
Student Challenges - Sam

• Student 3 (Sam) has a significant number of challenges, including extreme poverty and mental illness in the family.

• Sam comes to see M. Bodemer almost every day with more information about how he has been doing. He often wears the same clothes for days (or more) at a time and has poor personal hygiene.

• Sam often has no food and has had to visit the food pantry numerous times. He has sent an email to his teachers in the past that he has passed out (likely due to hunger) and could not attend class. At one point, he shared that he was allowed one sandwich to eat over the weekend and that was all.

• Sam is usually attending classes and getting work done, but has such severe issues and barriers that he can seem mentally exhausted and unable to concentrate in class. He recently shared that his family had severe financial trouble, and also that he had trouble sleeping at night because he was being bitten by fleas.
